HE GETS $816 ON A BOGUS CHECK AND DISAPPEARS.

A BIG DRAFT DENIED.

Tried to Have One Cashed for $2,132.47, but Failed--Futile Trip to Norfolk.

Major Poe, Chief of Police, and Sergeant Aleck Tomlinson returned last night from Norfolk and Old Point, where they went on Tuesday afternoon to look for J. Harvey Blair, the young man who came here about a month ago, claiming to be the State secretary of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Minnesota, the vice-president of the Consolidated Brush Company of Chicago, and the representative of a large syndicate of philanthropists who were building temples and homes for Good-Templar and Christian-Endeavor lodges and societies.

Blair is wanted here for the forgery of a draft for $2,132.47, drawn upon the American Exchange National Bank of New York, and purporting to be signed by the cashier of the Citizens' Bank of Northfield, Minn., which was placed in the Merchants National Bank here for collection, payment being denied by Cashier Burnett, and for passing a bogus check for $816 drawn upon the Chase National Bank of New York, at the Merchants National Bank. The latter piece of paper was endorsed by a well known young business man, of the city, who will suffer its loss.

" A PRUITLESS TRIP.

The draft and check were placed in the banks Monday morning, and on Monday night Blair disappeared. He had told friends at his boarding house Strause Brothers. that he had an engagement at 7 o'clock that evening, and remarked to one o two that he was going to Norfolk to meet ex-Mayor Babb, of Minnespolis, and a Mr. Wilson, of Minnespota, who he claimed, were interested in the syndi cate, to which reference has already been made.

Major Poe had been advised of the suspicions in regard to the young Chris tian worker and had Sergeant Tomlin son on the lookout for him Monday af ternoon. At that time, however, there was no certainty that the draft was not genuine and no arrest was authorized by Mr. Boulware, president of the First National Bank. On Tuesday morning the bank received a telegram from the bank in Northfield in respons a dispatch in regard to deaft pronouncing it a forgery Major Poe and Sergeant Tomlinson took the next train for Norfolk, thinking it possible that Blair had gone there in accordance with his declared intention. They made a most indefatigable search there for both the accused and ex-Mayor Babb, but neither could be found. Yesterday morning the Richmond officers went over to Old Point in the hope of catching Blair or seeing Mr. Babb, but their efforts were in vain, and Babb, but their cliotts were in vain, and they returned to the city last night in poor spirits. Major Poe knew nothing of the passage by Blair of the $816 check until he returned to the city, the matter not having been reported at his office until yesterday morning.

THE MAJOR DAFFLED.

The Major was seen at his residence, on Harrison street, by a Disparch re-porter last night. He said that he did not feel that he was in any way responside for the escape of Blair, as he was in favor of taking him right in even before the draft had been heard from. He was sure that he was a "pro-fessional pious fraud," the worst kind in the world. Chief Poe remarked that he felt confident that with Alexan der Tomlinson's experience and his own luck he would secure his man. assured the scribe, the first time he had ever gone after any one and returned without him. He said that he was confident from the moment he was given the facts in regard to Blair that he was

The Chief has not determined upon the course to be pursued in capturing Blair, but will devise a plan by morning. He is hopeful.

ATTENTIVE TO THE CASHIER.

Blair came to Richmond little more than a month ago. He stopped for a couple of days at Ford's Hotel, at the expiration of which time he went to a private boarding-house. It is not thought that he selected the place h It is now did because Mr. H. C. Burnett, cashier of the First National Bank, boarded low-border of the cashier the ter was taken ill. The stranger was very attentive and frequently sent Mr. Burnett flowers or fruits, manifesting much interest in the financier. These little " courtesies" were so frequent that Mr. Burnett became a little suspicious, and after his recovery spoke to Mr. Boulware, president of the bank about the man from Minnesota. Mr. Boulware gave it as his opinion at once that Blair had some object in view.

MAJOR POE AND BLAIR, most singular coincidence occurred at the bank Monday morning while Blair was endeavoring to get his draft Mr. Boulware had sent for Major Poe in order that he might have some conversation with him about the young man from Minneapolis, and when the Chief went into the presi dent's private office Blair was in the office of the cashier talking about his Mr. Eurnett told him that he could not cash the draft, but would take it and send it on for collection. Blair was a little astonished at this, as he expected to get the money, but he made no objection to the suggestion of the He walked out of the bank and must have gone thence to see the gentleman who endorsed his check and arranged to divest himself of the cash thus secured, as only a short while afterward Blair and the young man entered the Merchants' National Bank. The Christian worker from Minnesota handed the check for $816 across the counter and asked that The paying-teller replied that it would have to be endorsed before this could be done. Blair remarked that that would be easily accomplished, as his friend, to whom he wanted to give some of the money for religious work, would probably put his name across the back of the paper. The unsuspecting young man offered no objection to enorsing the check, and it was cashed. Blair handed his friend $150, the amount which he had subscribed for some charitable work, and put the remainder of the money in his pocket. The endorser will, of course, be the only person who will lose by Blair's transactions, but the blow is quite a heavy one to him. The Merchants' Bank telegraphed to the New York institution Monday evening and received a response yesterday, stating that the name signed to the check was unknown to it.

After leaving the bank Monday Blair Exchange Hotel and engaged rooms at $50 per day for the party of capitalists, who, he said, were coming here. Major Poe wired Minneapolis Monday, asking if ex-Mayor Babb was in the city. The answer came that he was not in town, having left for Washington, and would be in Norfolk Wednesday. This agreed exactly with Blair's statement and caused the Major to think the draft might possibly turn out to be

BLAIR'S RELIGIOUS WORK. While here Bhir took a great deal of interest in religious work and made many talks and addresses before Sunday-schools and other organizations. He gave quite freely to many worthy causes. It is thought that he must have contribu-ted $200 to $300 to these objects during his stay here. In fact, his generosity in this respect was commented upon by many who formed his acquaintance. It was remarked by several that he spent money most too freely for a man leading a pious life.

Blair held several large and successful meetings in Manchester and aroused considerable interest in his work. On last Sunday night he was listened to by an immense congregation. He made himself acquainted with many of the clergy of both Richmond and Manchester, and called upon the secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, but, strange to say, Mr. Tibbetts doubted the stranger's sincerity.

SOME OF BLAIR'S CLAIMS. In a conversation with Mr. Boulware, president of the First National Bank, few days ago Blair stated that he ex-pected to deposit a large sum of money pected to deposit a large sum of money there for the syndicate represented by him. He assured Mr. Boulware that about $30,000 would be placed as a preliminary sum, but that other deposits would follow. These funds, he stated, were to be invested around Richmond. Blair pledged himself to raise $30,000 for a temple for the Good Templars to be erected here.

Blair is about 5 feet 8 or 10 inches high, with dark hair, moustache, and righ, with dark hair, moustache, and side-whiskers. He was a nice dresser and had a peculiar way of dropping his eyes if a person looked steadily at him for many moments.

The attendance at the Memorial Bagaar last night was somewhat smaller than on the opening occasion, as the

The evening, from beginning to end, Louisa county, was a highly enjoyable one, and the novelty of the bazaar does not by any means appear to have worn off.

The exercises commenced with a very enjoyable entertainment, which was given in the auditorium-room of Sanger Hall, where quite a gathering of spectators assembled. Professor Malcolm Shackelford, a clever banjo artist, commenced the programme with some excellent singing, after which Captain Harry Lee Watson gave a recitation from Julius Casar. He acquitted himself excellently, despite the fact that the acoustics of the hall are rather poor. Mr. W. MacJones gave a "chalk talk," in which he displayed his skill both as a sketch artist, a humorist, and an ora-tor. He entertained the spectators by drawing on a blackboard, and inter-spersed the intervals with humorous remarks and burlesque recitations.

The Blues' Band furnished appropri ate music, and commenced their pro gramme with the usual melody, "Annie Laurie," which though time-honored is none the less beautiful.

WHILED AWAY THE HOURS. At the conclusion of the entertainment the crowd poured back into the Armory Hall, where they sought the many amusements which the place affords. Some of the couples, who had reached that stage when they desired seclusion, sought the gallery overlooking the huge room, while the more volatile hie themselves to the restaurant and cooled their sentiment with ice-cream. staid married couples trotted contented ly around the ball and inspected the many pretty articles in the booths, whi stage" who did not bring their girls found ample recreation in dodging their fair friends, who were pursuing an active canvass to procure funds for the

The South Carolina table, which ranks among the prettiest in the hall, is well tocked with useful and ornamental articles. Among these is an exquisite clock the gift of Messrs, James Allen & Co., o Charleston, which will be voted to the most popular member of the Howitzer Battery or association. This tent, as or the opening occasion, was aided last night by a detachment of the Richmond Howitzers, embracing Sergeant J. H. Cole, Corporal H. G. Whittet, Corporal W. M. Myers, Privates E. P. Taylor, Wythe Bolling, W. H. Mason, W. W. Lear, F. W. Allen, and W. F. Brodnax. The voting for the sword at the Mary land table, which will be awarded to the most popular military officer, has be-come quite spirited. Lieutenant Patton's friends made quite a spurt night and placed him in the lead, but General Charles J. Anderson is following close behind.

SMOEE AND CHEW.

The smoking-room, which is conducted under the auspices of the North Carolina Committee, has proven quite a popular feature of the bazaar, while the have realized handsome profits from the tobacco which they are selling. The committee have just received the follow-ing handsome donations: From Colonel Marchison, of Marchison & Co., Nev York, 825, and from Mr. William F Sorey, of the same firm, a like amount. Mrs. Seymour S. Cadot, of the Virginia tent, has received through Mrs. E.

L. Turner a donation of $25 from Greenesville county, and from Smithfield a box of splendid hams. She has also procured from Miss Nannie J. Thomas a box of fancy articles, and from Mrs. John Page, of Beaver Dam, a similar donation.

SOME OF THE FEATURES.

Several very handsome pictures are for sale at the Alabama tent, which is the rendezvous of the Confederate girls. Among the pictures are valuable por traits of Lee, Jackson, and Johnston and several water-colors.

The Kentucky tent has among it stock some very pretty specimens of linen-work and embroidery. syrup is sold by the committee in charge as a "side line." Mr. A. K. Schaap has donated to the Tennessee table a handsome tricycle in memory of his uncle, Robert Stern, who was killed at Chancellorsville.

At the Georgia table a handsome sword, donated by Captain L. T. Chris-tian, will be voted to the most popular captain in Richmond.

The chief executives who are attending the Southern Governors' Convention, and the gentlemen who accompany them to this city, were tendered a hand some lunch at the bazaar by the Cham her of Commerce Committee yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The meal was served in the auditorium-room at Sanger Hall, and the collation was spread on two long tables, which were very skil fully and tastefully arranged. The ladies of course prepared their most attractive menu for the distinguished visitors, and it need hardly be said that the Governors and their friends left with a very favor able idea of the Virginia bill of fare,
